More Water Needed For Basin Plan

Missouri Flow Is Inadequate, Says Wyoming Governor

RAPID CITY, S. D. —(AP)—A member of the Hoover commission said Saturday that Missouri river doesn't have enough water in it to operate all the projects planned under the Pick-Sloan plan.

Leslie A. Miller, chairman of the commission's natural resources task force, made that statement in an address prepared for delivery before the Black Hills agricultural institute here.

The former Wyoming governor said gauging station records of the U. S. geological survey at Yankton, S. D., indicate an average annual flow of the Missouri at that point of 17,350,000 acre feet. This was during the period 1938-1944 when precipitation in Wyoming, North Dakota and South Dakota was in the long-time normal shown in weather bureau records.

Another Reduction Predicted. That figure, according to a report of the engineering subcommittee in May, 1944, will be reduced by 6,800,000 feet when plans to irrigate new lands by the bureau of reclamation are completed. Evaporation from numerous large and small reservoirs will cut the figure even more.

A department of agriculture soil and erosion control plan, made since 1944 and approved by the Missouri basin inter-agency committee, Miller charged, will deplete the river by a minimum of 2,000,000 acre feet.

Board Of Regents—Hertzler And Alexis Give Up Chairmanships

Both Remaining On N. U. Staff; New Heads Named

OMAHA —(AP)—Two University of Nebraska department heads will step down next September, the university board of regents announced Saturday.

The two, Dr. J. O. Hertzler, chairman of the department of sociology and anthropology, and Dr. J. E. A. Alexis, chairman of the modern languages department, will remain on the university staff.

The regents met Saturday at the university college of medicine here.

Dr. Alexis, of retirement age, has headed the modern language department for 10 years. When he vacates the chairmanship, the department will be reorganized and divided.

Dr. W. K. Pfeiffer will become head of a new department of Germanic languages and Dr. Boyd G. Carter will head a new department of romance languages. Both are veteran staff members.

Dr. Hertzler, chairman of the sociology department for a little over 20 years, asked the board to relieve him of chairmanship responsibilities. He will be succeeded by Dr. James M. Reinhardt who has been professor of sociology since 1937 and a university staff member since 1931.

The board also accepted 14 routine resignations, including that of Dr. Carl E. Claassen, agronomist in chemistry, who plans to leave Nebraska to enter business in California. Dr. Claassen has been a staff member since 1941 engaged mostly in research to develop new agricultural crops for Nebraska.

A resolution adopted by the board asks the Nebraska congressional delegation to take what action it considers necessary to insure Nebraska of a clear legal title to the old Indian school property at Genoa. The property was turned over to the state several years ago and assigned to the university last year. It is being used for development of a new campus.

Board President R. W. Deane of Lincoln said there is some question of the university's legal right to dispose of abandoned buildings on the land.

Chillier Week End In State Forecast

February's final week end is bringing chillier temperatures to Nebraska.

Snow was falling at Grand Island, Norfolk and Valentine Saturday morning. Light flurries were predicted for the east late today and in the north tonight.

The extreme northeast portion of the state received enough new snow to cause icy spots on several highways. Snow on the ground ranged from an inch at Norfolk to two and a half to three inches in Dakota City.

The northeast will be the coldest spot in the state tonight with low readings near five above. Highs Sunday are expected to be near 20 in the northeast, in the 20s in the southwest.

HARRY G. GOULD

Harry Gould To Turkey As Ag Advisor

Leave Absence From N. U. Extension Work

Harry G. Gould, associate director of the agricultural extension service at the University of Nebraska, has been named one of eight American agricultural consultants to go to Turkey soon to aid in agricultural development.

The Americans have been selected from agriculture colleges of the great plains states and the department of agriculture.

The Americans will work directly with the ministry of agriculture in Turkey. Gould will direct the development of the agricultural education program. He has been granted a year's leave-of-absence by the University of Nebraska board of regents.

Janike Named.

E. W. Janike, state 4-H club leader, has been named acting associate director of the extension service during Gould's leave. He will continue also to direct 4-H club activities. At the same time, the board of regents named Elton Lux as acting assistant director of the extension service.

The Turkish government requested the aid of the American mission through the ECA and the great plains agricultural council. Paul Hoffman, ECA administrator, announced that the personnel was requested of the council because of the "significant progress made in this area and the similarity between the agriculture of Turkey and the great plains."

Gould is a leader in agricultural education. A graduate of the University of Nebraska, he has taken graduate work at Wisconsin. A pioneer in extension work, he started as county agent in Cheyenne county in 1918. He came to the college of agriculture in 1921 and was elevated from assistant director of extension to associate director about one year ago.

Gould is expected to leave about March 18 for his new assignment. Mrs. Gould will accompany him.

Way Paved To End All Rent Control

... In Surprise Action

WASHINGTON —(AP)—The senate appropriations committee Saturday paved the way for ending all federal rent controls on June 30.

The move was made in a deficiency appropriation bill.

The committee recommended to the senate that the office of housing expediter, which operates the nationwide controls, be granted $2,600,000 for use between now and June 30 but that the money be used to liquidate the agency and discharge its 4,135 employees.

President Truman and other administration leaders have called for an extension of federal ceilings upon rents beyond June 30.

The surprise action of the committee was announced after a closed session by Chairman McClellan (D-Tenn.). He said there was no record vote among the 21 members and there had been some opposition.

Rehearing For Hi-Line Case Is Requested

Towns fighting elimination of trains 151 and 152 on the Burlington's Holdrege "Hi-Line" today asked the Supreme court for a rehearing.

The court recently reversed the state railway commission and held that the railroad was justified in removing the trains because of loss of revenue.

In a brief filed in court today, counsel for the towns said: "The court erred in holding that there will be adequate transportation facilities to handle the business handled by trains Numbers 151 and 152 in the absence of such trains."

—Coal Strike—

U. M. W.'s Leaders Meeting

Fuel Crisis In Nation Grows Steadily Worse

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A gathering of John L. Lewis' top union leaders Saturday hinted possible week-end developments in the coal strike crisis.

With Lewis himself out of town, the presidents of the soft coal districts came to Washington for a pow-wow with Thomas Kennedy, United Mine Workers vice president, and John Owens, the UMW's secretary-treasurer.

The union strategy session preceded another negotiating meeting of union and coal operator representatives Saturday morning. Kennedy is the union's top spokesman with Lewis away.

It could not be determined whether the surprise session of union leaders was a tip-off to possible contract developments—or merely a briefing on the situation before the union's scheduled court contest trial Monday.

Government officials urgently prodded the peace negotiators in the hope of a break before the contempt case comes to judgment, but they were not optimistic.

With the nation's fuel crisis growing steadily worse, there seemed little basis for figuring any settlement was near.

Federal mediation chief Cyrus S. Ching, one of the men President Truman has assigned to try to end the eight-month-long dispute, said there hasn't been any progress since the present court-directed bargaining got under way on Feb. 15.

Rerouting Buses A, Sumner Loup Gets Approval

The state railway commission Friday approved the change in routing of City Lines buses on the "A" street and Sumner loop, Harold A. Palmer, chairman, announced. The new routing will start the morning of Feb. 28.

The change was requested by the city lines following a request for the change from the city of Lincoln. Several witnesses appeared in behalf of the change and there was no opposition, the commission said.

The evidence given the commission was that a large number of bus riders would be benefited and few inconvenienced.

Large Funders' Day Attendance Expected

Indications are that the Nebraska Republican Founders' Day dinner, March 21, will be the largest in many years, Ted S. Hook, Wayne, Founders' Day president, said Saturday.

Over 7,500 tickets for the banquet were mailed to outstate party members Saturday, Hook said. In addition, there will be 1,500 additional tickets offered in Lincoln and Omaha, he said.

Speakers for the event to be held at the Cornhusker hotel include Guy George Gabrielson, republican national committee chairman; Fulton Lewis, Jr., radio commentator; Mrs. Guy George Gabrielson, republican national vice chairman, and the Nebraska Washington delegation. Governor and Mrs. Val Peterson will be hosts.

Payment To City

Consumers Public Power District made a payment of $1,752 to the city Saturday. The payment, in lieu of occupation taxes on the sale of steam, covers the year ending Feb. 28.

Peter Marshall Tells Of Apostles

Chapter 4 THE SAINT OF THE RANK AND FILE

In any list of the apostles, most of us would begin by naming the triumvirate—Peter, James and John, and then we go like this: Peter . . . James . . . John . . . and Matthew . . . and Judas of course . . . and Philip . . . and, Oh yes, Thomas . . . let's see . . . and . . . and . . . who were the rest anyway?

Most of us know nothing much about Andrew—except that he was Peter's brother, and one of the apostles. But we ought to know Andrew better than that, because we see him every day. He is the man who sits beside you on the bus. He may be the fellow who blows the mailman's whistle down the street . . . or drives the street-car . . . or waits on you in the store . . . or works at the next desk in your office . . . or sells you your ticket at the railroad station.

Andrew is all around you. You meet him every day, and he holds

'People Are Really Going To Churches'

Want Spiritual Hope, Bishop Kennedy Says

Bishop Gerald Kennedy, former pastor of St. Paul Methodist church, Saturday agreed that the American people are going to church in increasing numbers.

"People today want spiritual comfort and hope," Dr. Kennedy, now bishop of the Portland, Ore., area of the Methodist church, said. He is in Lincoln to open the Lenten lecture series at St. Paul Methodist church Sunday night.

"The most hopeless time for the church is when people are smug and satisfied, but that day is past. Periods like the present are usually productive of religious revivals."

"Across the country, where the church is alive, people are really going to church."

Rev. Kennedy, known for his quick smile and interpretation of the Bible in the light of everyday needs, paid a short visit to St. Paul this morning. "It's wonderful to get back to Lincoln," he added.

Hits Magazine Article. In answer to a question about a recent magazine article which labeled the Methodist Federation for Social Action as "pink-tinted," Bishop Kennedy said:

"The author has taken statements, phrases and sentences from the context of speeches by members of the federation. These he criticizes alone, without benefit of the material originally accompanying them. This is unfair and gives a slant to the words of these men. It is yellow journalism."

"The federation thinks the church should be criticized for its society," he stated. "And although I don't agree with many of the things which members of the federation say, I know there's not a communist in the bunch."

"They're all true Americans who believe the obligation of a Christian, and certainly one of the main responsibilities of the Christian church, is to hold American life under the judgment of God."

Sunday evening, at St. Paul, Bishop Kennedy will speak on "The Spirit of the Lord." He leaves Monday night for Chicago, to speak to an international Methodist meeting.

Make up your own minds. And make the peace and blessing of God go with you."

We remember what happened when they arrived at the place. They heard the message of John the Baptist—a strange man who with piercing, glowing eyes and eloquent tongue stirred them as they had never been stirred before.

Later, they met Jesus and spent some time in personal conversation with him, and pledged themselves to become his disciples. And the very first thing that Andrew did after he found Jesus was to search out his own brother, Simon, and introduce him to Christ.

Andrew went with Jesus when he came to Galilee and was present when Jesus worked his first miracle. Andrew saw him at the

Man Seeking Legislative Seat From 39th District

J. L. Brown, Brule, filed with the secretary of state Saturday for nomination to the legislature from the 39th district. Sen. Clyde F. Chetsinger, Paxton, the incumbent, has not yet filed.

The district comprises Keith, Deuel, Garden, Arthur, Grant, Hooker, McPherson, Thomas, Logan and Blaine counties.

There is something significant in the fact that Andrew was the first of the apostles to be called. The choice was important, for it was the example of Andrew, the lead he gave and the influence he brought to bear upon the others that to a large extent decided them.

Christ saw right away that the soul's unrest, the straining after higher things, and the deeper knowledge of God which made Andrew walk from Bethsaida to Bahany indicated a promise of large spiritual growth and a fertile field in which the seed could be cast.

Andrew has usually been referred to as Simon Peter's brother. He himself was not a leader of men. He was not aggressive like Simon. We find him usually playing second fiddle to his famous

Sen. Lucas' Potato Plan Is Rejected

... By 43 To 35 Vote

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Most potato growers could count Saturday on continued government price supports on this year's crop, despite efforts to halt them in a move to prevent future surpluses.

A combination of 28 republicans and 15 democrats Friday night beat down a proposal of Senator Lucas (D-Ill.) to remove potato price props until congress and growers agreed to rigid planting and marketing controls.

Nebraska's two senators voted with the majority.

Instead, the senate approved, 43 to 35, a plan which the author, Senator Aiken (R-Vt.), said would "continue potato price supports in almost all commercial areas unless growers reject marketing agreements and orders."

Lucas, the majority leader, had threatened earlier to keep senators in session far into the night to complete action on the potato price props as well as a cotton acreage measure to which it was attached.

But, after defeat of his proposal, he postponed final action on the farm bill until Monday.

The Aiken substitute bans potato price supports unless growers are under either marketing agreements and orders, or quotas authorized later by law.

Majority Narrowest One In Recent Times

... Cabinet Holds Emergency Session

LONDON—(AP)—Prime Minister Attlee said Saturday his labor government will carry on, even though it has perhaps the smallest parliamentary majority in a century.

He announced the decision to newsmen after a 75-minute emergency session of his cabinet.

It means the labor party will form another government even at the continuous risk of being forced into a new election at a time not of its choosing.

All Attlee would say when he emerged from the meeting at No. 10 Downing street, his official residence, was:

"Well, we are carrying on."

A formal statement may be issued later. No one knows whether it would come Saturday.

Attlee then stepped into a car, driven by Mrs. Attlee, and left for the weekend at an undisclosed place in the country.

A record-smashing vote returned Britain's socialist labor party to power Thursday with the thinnest majority in over a century, so weakening the government that new elections may have to be called.

Auditorium Case Under Advisement

Question Is Of Election Validity

The question of location of the auditorium site boiled down in District court Saturday to one question:

In view of previous authorization to build at Fifteenth and N, the money so far spent and the taxes collected, have the people of Lincoln the right to bring the issue to another election?

District Judge John L. Polk, after a morning-long hearing, took the matter under advisement.

The hearing was held on the city's demurrer, which contends that the lawsuit filed by six Lincoln men, asking that no election be held and that the authorization to build at this site be given the "go-ahead," does not constitute a cause of action.

An election, purpose of which would be to change the location from the downtown site, has been asked by approximately 4,000 Lincoln petitioners. The lawsuit came as a result of these petitions.

At the hearing, counsel for the six Lincoln men who sponsored the Fifteenth street site, argued that the city, because of the previous commitments, cannot alter its plans.

Attorneys for the city, and for the petitioners, argued that this can be done.

Question Constitutional. Deputy City Attorney Russell Mattson, arguing that the question is one of constitutional law, declared that the people have the sovereign right to say what their charter will contain.

"If they desired to abolish the city charter, nothing would prevent them from doing so . . . and there is nothing to prevent them from voting in an amendment to it."

The three previous authorizations—1939, 1941 and 1949—were in the form of amendments to the city Home Rule charter.

Proposal Said Legislative. Leonard A. Flansburg, representing the petitioners, defined the election proposal as legislative and political, and therefore outside the judicial jurisdiction of the court.

He said the courts can act on laws after they are passed, not while they're in the legislative stage. He termed the present action "premature." "You can't enjoin a legislature from enacting laws," he added.

Flansburg said validity and security of the approximate $1 million in bonds so far issued would not be affected.

"No Conflict." Both Flansburg and Mattson argued that the substance of the proposed election amendment does not conflict with any constitutional law.

Attorney Clarence A. Davis, representing the plaintiffs in the lawsuit, said the three authorizations were a promise to every voter.

"Not Ordinary Election." These authorizations remove the election proposal from the category of ordinary elections, and for that reason the court has jurisdiction, Davis declared.

He concluded that a municipal corporation is subject to "estoppel"—prevention from altering its plans—the same as an individual.

Mattson then took the floor again and said the city in this case was acting as an agent of the people, not as a corporation. He described it as "agency representation."

History of the case was outlined to the court by City Attorney John Jacobson.

DANGEROUS LIVING

BY J. E. LAWRENCE

What was hailed as the most important election held in twentieth-century Britain is now in the history books.

The thing of the minute is always the most important. What is behind in most thinking is old stuff, and what is ahead remains to be explored. There hasn't been a truly genuine majority party in British politics since the era before World War I, with but one exception, labor, in 1945. The governments of the British premiers for more than 30 years have existed through the sufferance of minority groups.

Lloyd George, Bonar Law, Baldwin, MacDonald, Chamberlain, and Churchill parading in and out of No. 10 Downing street, in again, out again, never mustered the clean-cut, decisive, overwhelming landslide which frequently the American voters bestow upon one of the two major parties in this country. That is why there are no simple interpretations to be placed upon the noisiest, most exciting, and possibly the most far-reaching election in a permanent sense held since the turn of the century in the British Isles. Government in Britain, infinitely more than here in the United States, has been a matter of "all for one, and one for all." Possibly Britain is entering upon a new phase of British political life in this classic death struggle between socialism and British conservatism.

If that actually is the case, even a moment's reflection upon it poses questions.

From out of the smoke and the thunder for a second time, British Labor, headed by Attlee, emerges with a clear majority in parliament, smaller than it was five years ago, to be sure, but a majority nevertheless in the matter of parliamentary seats, and very close to a majority in the popular vote. The Conservatives made sweeping gains, both in the number of seats in parliament (79) and the number of popular votes. Labor suffered a loss in the seats in parliament (67), but it also increased its popular vote most substantially. It is this latter development, an impressive gain in the popular vote rolled up by the British Labor party, that will get very little attention in American headlines or news stories.

A few scattered districts were yet to report at week's end. Not enough to change the results in any sense, because Labor had a majority of all the seats at stake. But in popular vote Labor had strengthened itself from just slightly fewer than 12 million followers to over 13 million supporters. The conservative gain on the basis of the same figures was 2,178,593. What happened then was the virtual disappearance of the smaller minority parties in a battle that was sufficiently tense to wipe out all but the strongest.

There was no indication of what actually happened to the British communists. They failed to seat a single member. Whether they took the long view that it was better to throw in with Churchillian Conservatives, a technique not unfamiliar to communists, in the hope that a reaction would give them a real chance some years hence, was uncertain. One of the spectacular reflections furnished by Thursday's balloting is that Britain moved nearer to the two-party system than it has been for years. It was socialism against rugged individualism and in the furious struggle that took place, virtually all but the two giants disappeared.

What happened in Britain, both from the standpoint of Labor and the British Conservatives, is wholesome. A check upon the party in power is never a bad thing in the sobering effect of it.

British labor cannot escape giving to a very powerful minority a healthy respect for its views. That is the essence of liberty. Whenever brutal majorities ride roughshod with spur and whip, they weaken themselves.

It is impossible for the American people to measure the depth of the tides that pounded upon the shores of Britain. The first global conflict dealt the British people a severe blow, but nothing by comparison with the drain imposed upon their economic strength, or their courage, by the second World War. They blew in the bulk of their investments the world over to finance the early years of their defense of the British homeland. They were empty-handed when lend-lease was born, their dollars gone, their credit pledged. Their cities and their countryside were yet to experience the devastation of German air bombardment. One simple example, even at the risk of oversimplification, may illustrate the basis of the struggle between a British welfare state and Churchill's doctrine of private enterprise. In the space of a single night the ancient British industrial city of Coventry was blown to bits. It was the seat of the chinaware activities. Between the coming of darkness and the next sunrise its factories, its business establishments, and its residential sections, were reduced to blackened, smoking ruins. That happened in Britain many times, even in the great sprawling capital of London.

There was the task of rebuilding from the ground up, but with what? British capitalism was exhausted in waging war, in defending British soil, and after a successful defense there was the task of reconstruction to be carried on empty-handed, and with empty pockets. It was a job for private enterprise, but unfortunately British private enterprise had become a casualty of a frightfully costly war, drained dry, with slender resources and credits.

We can flay a welfare government, and we can extol the virtues of capitalism as the basis of government, but both lunish no answer to the problems which the British people face. They apparently came to the conclusion that if their government could not lift them to their feet, nothing could or would. It is so easy for all of us to put a finger upon mistakes which have been made, especially the mistake of putting reform of British life through programs of nationalization of industries ahead of the actual job of reconstruction. That still leaves unanswered the question of whether Britain could rebuild its factories and its homes and, on top of that job, pay profits for private enterprise.

Attlee and his associates did not delay in making public their decision. Although precarious their majority, they will go ahead. They are certain to face increasing opposition all along the line, and their tenure of office may be short. But Britain marched to the polls in an unprecedented turnout of citizens through fog and rain to mark a ballot, and in the amazing recorded vote, which found an astounding percentage of the qualified electorate expressing themselves, they added new luster to their political system. There were few stay-at-homes. There was no evidence of indifference or apathy. They voted in a free election and, on the basis of the figures, more took the trouble to indicate their convictions than has happened frequently in dictator countries where people are forced to go to the polls.

It was a week of swift action. Here at home, America was moving from out of winter into spring. The outdoors was beckoning to Uncle Sam's millions both in the spirit of recreation and to take up outside chores. There was deepening mystery in the relations between Hungary and the United States. On the heels of the Vogeler case, there was the new incident of the death of an American naval attaché, Captain Eugene S. Karpe. He was a friend of Vogeler. In Washington, the House went through the gesture of passing a toothless Fair Employment Practices Act, but generally congress was sputtering and getting nowhere.

Home, School Are Conducive To Child's Emotional Growth

... Dr. Shirley Says; Lists Six Factors

Home and school environment are the most conducive to normal emotional growth and attainment of emotional maturity of children, Dr. Hale F. Shirley, director of Stanford university's child psychiatry unit, said here Friday night.

"All children," the former Lincoln pediatrician told an audience of 250 at Love library auditorium, "have certain basic needs in relation to society. If these needs are unable to be satisfied, they will develop emotional disturbances."

Dr. Shirley was in Lincoln in connection with the annual meeting of the Lincoln and Lancaster County Child Guidance center held Friday.

"Wholesome" Love. Dr. Shirley gave six factors essential to the child's emotional growth. They are:

1. "Wholesome" parental love and affection.
2. A proper balance between "permissiveness" and excessive parental control.
3. The examples parents give children of emotional maturity. Dr. Shirley added that it is not necessary for parents to be perfect. "Indeed, children from such a home would not be very well equipped for the sort of world we live in," he said.
4. Security. A child is often bet-

Chapter 14

"I really don't know how I got along before I had this place to come to as a haven of refuge. You know I love this house and garden."

Don said it with a seriousness that made Anne smile. They were sitting on the bench in the back yard and wearing coats for the first time. It was mid-September and the weather had suddenly changed just when people had begun to feel that summer would never end. Today had definitely been a fall day. Now at sunset there was a fall feeling in the air. The kitchen door was closed but lights flooded out in festive fashion. It was not only the first fall day but the twins' birthday. They were out walking with their grandfather while Mary finished the last-minute surprises for the dinner. It was to be held in the big kitchen just the same as Don's special request. Anne smiled at him now.

"Why do you need a haven of refuge? What do you have to run away from?"

"Myself. All my life I have been trying to do that. My worst offenses are only part of that pattern. I was trying to forget myself."

She laughed lightly. So much water seemed to have run under the bridge, as her father would say, since the day she had decided that all of Don's generosity were self-interest. That night she had gone to meet Tony in a cab driven by a man who knew him. That night Tony had wine and dined her and they had danced away half the night at an expensive club. That night she had bluntly asked Tony where he had got so much money so suddenly, and he had laughed at her and said they would soon have money to burn. He had brought her home and held her in his arms and told her he adored her. He had been drinking, of course, but on that August night with daylight not so far away it was his tenseness and extravagance and wild laughter which had frightened her. It was a new Tony and one she feared for. He had called twice more in the intervening five weeks but she had not seen him since. But Don had become a regular visitor and she had had to accept him for what he was.

"I think you're fishing for compliments."

His clear gray eyes looked at her gently. "I never expect compliments from you."

"I realize that you are very fond of the twins and today is their birthday, so I can't make you take back the tricycles and other gifts you brought. But don't you think there is such a thing as spoiling children?"

"Not Rob and Roy."

"Be sensible, Don. They will be asking you for ponies next."

His eyes twinkled. "I plan that for Christmas, Anne."

"Do you expect to provide two stables to keep the ponies in?"

"My stable has plenty of room for them."

"And of course your house has plenty of room for the children."

"Of course. And you."

He said it lightly and his eyes were still laughing, but she stopped smiling and drew a deep steady breath. Her voice came softly but firmly.

"I don't think your mother would approve of your plans, Don."

"As a matter of fact, the ponies were her suggestion at the time I came back from Montana."

"Don. I am serious. Roger and the twins want you here all the time, but be kind enough to come quite empty-handed for a while. I mean with nothing at all. Test the twins and assure yourself that their welcome will be not one whit less enthusiastic."

"How beautifully you use words. Like your father."

"I'm sure you have a very good memory, Don. Remember I told you I loved Tony Raymond and was going to marry him."

"I have met Tony Raymond. I felt I should. We are friends now. Yes, I think he will say that, too, if you ask him."

She sat looking at him, her hands folded in her lap. "I suppose you know I haven't seen Tony since the day you brought the dogs."

"He told me he had been neglecting you."

"Then he knows you are coming here regularly."

"Of course. I felt I should tell him that."

She leaned toward him. "Just why did you feel you should tell Tony that you have been coming here to see father and the twins?"

He looked straight into her eyes. "You said I have a good memory, Anne. It is true. You told me you were going to marry

Basin Plan Prospects Are Gloomy

Governor Believes Program 'Stymied'

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Gov. Val Peterson of Nebraska takes a gloomy view of prospects for action on the agriculture department's Missouri river basin program.

He declared he's come to the conclusion the program is stymied. He said the Truman administration has taken "no effective action" to get it before congress "and I am not too hopeful for any action soon."

Peterson told a reporter he had spent Thursday afternoon and part of Friday looking into the status of the program offered last fall by Secretary Charles F. Brannan.

He said he talked with members of the senate agriculture, appropriations and public lands committees.

"I have come to the conclusion that the program is stymied until there is proper clarification of the interior and agriculture department plans," he said.

Peterson said the Missouri river inter-agency committee, composed of the governor and other representatives of the Missouri basin states, has approved the broad objectives of Brannan's long-range program for the area.

30-Year Program. It calls for an expenditure of $3,000,000,000 over a 30-year period to develop and better balance the agriculture of the area. It proposes to step up the development program so as to do in 30 years what normally would require a century.

Peterson said there was a great need to accelerate the soil conservation work in the basin to bring it into balance with the developments being brought about through flood control, irrigation and increased electric power.

"It is up to the administration to move," Peterson said, adding, "I am disappointed that it has taken no effective action. And I am not too hopeful for any action soon."

Peterson also visited with the members of the state's delegation Friday.

He said he "looked into" the federal highway building program for Nebraska and the country, as well as the activities of what he called the "petroleum lobby" in connection with the highway program.

He flew back to Omaha Friday night.

Four Groups Will Join In Dairy Meet

A dairy conference starting at the University of Nebraska college of agriculture campus Tuesday will include annual meetings of four organizations—the Nebraska State Dairyman's association, the Nebraska Butter Institute, the American Dairy Association of Nebraska and the Nebraska Milk Dealers association.

Prof. P. A. Downs of the university's dairy department, who is a member of the arrangements committee, said the conference's purpose is to co-ordinate the interests of all branches of the dairy industry, associations and health groups of the state and cities, as well as the state department of agriculture.

The first day's session will include the program of the Nebraska State Dairyman's association. The meeting begins at 10 a. m. with the presentation of certificates to owners of high producing herds. The awards will be presented by Extension Dairyman M. N. Lawritson. Principal speaker of the day will be W. D. Knox, Ft. Atkinson, Wis., editor of Hoard's Dairyman. He will talk at 2 p. m.

Milk problems will be discussed on the second day. Features will be a report on the grade A milk situation by T. A. Filipi of the department of health and a talk on milk plant problems by Prof. P. S. Lucas of Michigan State college. Professor Lucas will speak again Thursday night during a meeting at a dinner sponsored by the Nebraska Dairy Technology society. Ice cream problems will be discussed Thursday.

The annual meeting of the Nebraska Butter Institute will be held on the last day. Creamery and butter manufacturing problems will be discussed. The four days' activities will close with a dinner at the agricultural college cafeteria at 6:30 p. m. Thursday. Professor Lucas again will speak.

250 Women At Meet Observing World Prayer Day

About 250 women attended the evening service and dinner meeting of the World Day of Prayer held Friday night at the St. Paul Methodist church.

The dinner was prepared and served by the women of the church. Miss Josephine Gaede, general chairman, gave an explanation of the meaning of the service and gave the call to worship. A responsive reading was held, led by Miss Leila Bailey. Miss Charlene Houts and Mrs. J. Kent Wassung.

Mrs. Esther Price, accompanied by Miss Hilda Chowins, sang, "I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked."

Bids High On Oil Leases For School Lands

... Average $1 Per Acre

Evidence of the upward surge of the oil boom in Nebraska was given Friday when one-year leases on the oil and gas rights on 28,192 acres of public school land sold for an average of nearly $1 an acre.

Every acre of school land in Banner and Kimball counties has now been placed under two leases. One grants the farming or grazing privilege, the other the mineral rights. But five parcels of land remain unleased for oil in Cheyenne county and they will be offered at public sale next month.

Henry Bartling, secretary of the board of education of the county, said the Friday sale netted the public schools $28,119. The bidding in all instances started at a minimum of 25 cents per acre. The lowest bid for Kimball and Banner county leases was 65 cents. The highest was $1.30.

Two Counties Lower. Prices slumped off slightly on tracts in Scotts Bluff and Sheridan counties where the low sale was 35 cents per acre and the high $1.25.

Sinclair Oil and Gas Co., which previously had evinced no interest in Nebraska leases, obtained a number of tracts in the spirited bidding. The sales included:

In Banner county, Sinclair bid in six sections at $1.15, one at $1.20, one at $1.10 and one at $1. Superior Oil Co. bid $1.15 on three sections, one at $1, one at 90 cents, one at 75 cents and one at 70 cents. A. J. Flagg, Oakland, Calif., bid $1 on another section.

Kimball Bids High. Sinclair obtained two sections in Kimball county for $1.15, two partial sections for $1.10, two sections for $1.05, four sections and part of another for $1 and a section for 95 cents. Flagg bid $1.30 for another section. Superior paid $1.15 for part of a section, $1.05 for two sections and $1 for another. 95 cents for one section and part of another, 30 and 60 cents for two sections and 70 and 60 cents for two partial sections.

In Scotts Bluff county, Flagg got 40 acres for 45 cents and Superior bought a section for 60 cents and a partial section for 90 cents. Superior bought four sections in Sheridan county for 35, 55, 75, and 95 cents per acre. Flagg obtained a section for $1.25.

U.S. Near Breaking Relations

—Balkan Nations—

American Assets Of Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary Are Seized

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The United States moved a step closer Saturday to a diplomatic break with the remainder of Russian's Balkan satellites by freezing the American assets of citizens of Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania.

A stop-payment order issued by the alien property custodian underlined Secretary of State Acheson's hint that a provocative campaign against the U. S. in the Balkans may bring the diplomatic ban slapped on Bulgaria down on the heads of the Romanian and Hungarian regimes.

The justice department announced that American property remittances and bank payments for citizens of Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania have been impounded.

Expedites U. S. Claims. A spokesman explained that the order is designed to expedite the claims of Americans whose property in the three nations was damaged during the war.

The United States severed diplomatic relations with Bulgaria last Tuesday. The rupture resulted from Bulgaria's refusal to withdraw its demand for the expulsion of U. S. minister Donald R. Heath on alleged spy charges.

The suspension of payments apparently is aimed at Hungary, which sentenced Robert A. Vogeler, International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. vice president, to 15 years in prison for alleged espionage.

Checkmates Demand. It was also interpreted as an attempt to checkmate Hungary's demand that the U. S. reduce its diplomatic mission there. The U. S. closed two Hungarian consulates in this country last Jan. 15.

Acheson vehemently castigated the "iron curtain" tactics of the Balkan satellites at his news conference Friday.

He made it plain that the severance of diplomatic relations with Hungary and Romania is being considered.

California Faculty Given Ultimatum On Loyalty Oath

BERKELEY, Calif. — (INS) — Members of the University of California who have refused to sign a non-communist loyalty oath were faced with an ultimatum Saturday.

The board of regents ordered all faculty members to sign such an oath by April 30 or give up their jobs.

The regents announced that 13.5 per cent of the faculty have declined to sign the oath.

The controversy began last June when the matter of a loyalty oath was first brought up by the regents.

A faculty committee claimed that signing such an oath would impair "academic freedom."

Dismissal Of Case Against Estate Upheld

Affirmed by the Supreme court Friday was the decision of the Lancaster county District court dismissing the action brought by Henry L. Casper et al., against Jerry W. Frey, administrator of the estate of Catherine Oelting.

The Caspers contended an oral contract existed under which they would receive property of Mrs. Oelting after her death in return for giving her services she might desire.

Reversed and remanded with directions was the suit of Raymond P. Ash et al., against the City of Omaha to have the acquisition of a tract of land known as Krug park be declared void.

The court held that "where a city acquires the fee title to land by gift for a specific, limited and defined purpose, the city cannot thereafter use the land for another or different purpose or convey it back to the original owners under the facts as they exist in the instant case."

The court reversed the final decree finding that the city execute a deed in favor of Metcalfe Construction Co., upon payment of $30,000 to be distributed to the donors of the land.

State Publishers Objecting To Rail Shipping Rate Hike

Increase in intra-state rail shipping rates on newspapers and other periodicals, applied for by the Western Passenger association, has met almost unanimous objection from Nebraska publishers.

Harry C. King, rate expert for the state railway commission, said Friday, The request was for a 20 per cent increase.

As a result of the objections, the commission will set a date for hearing on the application.

The passenger association, an organization of all railroads operating west of the Mississippi river, has also made application to the Interstate Commerce Commission for a similar increase in interstate rates. New tariffs are adopted on application and become effective if no protests are filed.

Protest on the inter-state rates have been filed by publishers and as a result a suspension of seven months in the effective date will follow. In the meantime, hearings will be held.

Wishful Thinking

THUMBED THROUGH OUR little black book hoping we had missed something spectacular yesterday or the day before, so we would have an interesting item or two today.—But it was wishful thinking.—We've told just about everything we know—with the exception of those events that don't choose to be talked about—

WE THINK A REFRESHER course might be in order though.—At least a reminder that Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Shurtleff are holding open house between the hours of 4 o'clock and 8 o'clock, honoring Bishop and Mrs. Gerald Kennedy—and that all friends of the Kennedys are asked to attend without further invitation.

THIS BEING FEBRUARY 25, we think it is proper and fitting to mention that the tea, following the living pictures which formally open the Nebraska Art association's annual exhibit, will be held on Sunday afternoon, March 5, in Morrill hall.

General chairman of the tea arrangements is Mrs. William Avon Fraser; and chairman of the tenth and eleventh grade girls who will serve is Mrs. Harry Flansburg, while Mrs. Victor Jouvenat directs the program girls.

HOME AGAIN ON FRIDAY was Dr. John Brown who spent a few days attending a medical meeting in St. Louis.

The ceremony was solemnized at Fairbury on Saturday, February 4, and attending the couple were Mr. and Mrs. James A. Callahan. Mr. and Mrs. Hackbart are residing at 2737 Franklin.

Pre-Nuptial Affairs

Miss Lois Hamilton, whose marriage to Leslie Hageman will be solemnized on March 10 at the First Evangelical United Brethren church, will be the honoree Saturday evening when Mrs. Albert Deshayes, Mrs. William Thompson and Mrs. John Schlaphoff will be co-hostesses at the home of Mrs. Deshayes.

Forty guests have been invited for the informal evening, and a miscellaneous shower will be presented to the honoree.

Last Wednesday evening, Miss Mary Kennedy and Mrs. George Swan entertained at the home of Miss Kennedy honoring the bride-to-be. The evening was spent with games and the eighteen guests presented a shower of personal gifts to Miss Hamilton.

Also included among the recent affairs in courtesy to Miss Hamilton was the pantry shower held on Friday evening, February 17, for which Mrs. Joe Hageman was hostess to twelve guests at her home. The evening hours were devoted to games followed by refreshments.

Coal Shortage Not Emergency, Turner Says

"While the coal situation in Nebraska is serious and critical, no emergency exists," Lt. Col. H. R. Turner, assistant state adjutant, reported. "As long as the mines keep open a few days, the railroad keeps running and the weather man stays on our side an emergency is unlikely."

Col. Turner said credit for the satisfactory condition in the state should go entirely to the coal salesmen, both wholesale and retail, and the fact that consumers have not been panicky and started hoarding.

Wholesale salesmen, he explained, are watching the situation over the state carefully and routing cars of coal first to localities where shortages are imminent. Cars in transit, he said, are being rerouted where necessary to prevent shortages.

In the larger cities, he explained, retail dealers are co-operating and sharing special types of fuel so that customer needs can be met. "The co-operation of coal salesmen, who are experts in caring for the state fuel needs, has repeatedly prevented emergencies when shortages, etc., were downed a few hours supply," Turner said.

Cab Dispute Hearing Set On Stipulation

The state court of industrial relations held "unacceptable" a stipulation filed in the Omaha Yellow Cab industrial dispute which would have provided for an election on March 3 to determine the bargaining agent of the employees.

Instead, the court set for March 3 oral arguments on the proposed stipulation.

The company had joined the C.I.O. transport workers and the A. F. L. taxicab and chauffeurs unions in the stipulation for the election as had independent workers.

Rockets Blast Jeffs

NE Captures Mid-East Title With 55-21 Rumble

(Special To The Star)

FAIRBURY, Neb. — Lincoln Northeast won the Mid-East conference title here Friday night with an easy 55-21 waltz past Fairbury.

It was a frolic all the way for the defending state Class A quint as it gained win No. 5 in the Mid-East without a defeat and No. 13 for the season against one setback.

Every Rocket saw action against the Jeffs and the scoring was so divided that Center Paul Fredstrom, the top scorer of the night, finished with nine counters.

The home team was blanked in the field goal department for the first quarter and the Rockets ambled to a 14-3 margin after the first eight minutes.

SUBS GET WORKOUT.

It wasn't until 12 minutes had been played that the Jeffs could hit a field goal, Guard Jerry Stapleton finally connecting. But that was the only two-point play Fairbury could make in the first half as the Black and White left the floor with a 30-6 advantage.

Coach Eddie Johnson used substitutes for almost the remainder of the game. Fredstrom and ace Guard Jack Wood rested during the third quarter which ended, 38-18.

Platoon operations by Coach Harold McDonald revealed that a team of juniors performed better than the regulars, mostly seniors. But it made no difference as Northeast continued to pour in points.

LeRoy Seng sparked for the winners with a good floor game and his usual heads-up ball-sniping besides seven points which included the first five Rocket markers of the game.

The Jeffs held the lead only once, a 1-0 margin, before Seng started the Rocket rambles.

Seven of Coach Johnson's boys scored more than four points while Guard Doug Thomas paced Fairbury with eight.

Northeast's reserves also enjoyed a one-sided win with a 47-27 slide past the Jeff seconds in the preliminary.

'Mercy' Killing— Husband's Statement Stricken

Defense Blocks Efforts To Prove Borroto Not Connected With Sander

MANCHESTER, N. H.—(AP)—
Counsel for Dr. Hermann N. Sander threw a block Friday against state efforts to prove that the husband of the woman he is charged with slaying had nothing to do with her "mercy" death.

The block was thrown up shortly before the murder trial of the 41-year-old country doctor. Dr.
Sander is charged with killing
Mrs. Abbie Borroto, a cancer-doomed patient, with lethal air injection on Dec. 4.

Chief defense counsel Louis E.
Wyman bowed to his feet the in-stand Sheriff Thomas E. O'Brien testified the prosecution had a signed statement from Borroto.

Husband's Position.
The statement said that Borroto claimed he had "nothing to do with Dr. Sander in this."

Testimony had been presented earlier quoting Dr. Sander as saying he yielded to Borroto's pleadings to end his wife's suffering even if it meant "eliminating her life."

Judge Harold E. Westcott sustained Wyman's objections and ordered the sheriff's testimony stricken from the record.

Wyman told newsmen later that Borroto would be called as a defense witness if the state doesn't place him on the stand.

Nurse's Account.
Adjournment left incomplete a nurse's account of the waning life of Mrs. Borroto.

Miss Elizabeth Rose read bedside notes covering the first several days of her attendance on Mrs. Borroto, starting Nov. 22.
The notes contained frequent references to injections of drugs to ease pain and flagging pulse and respiration.

Phinney said the nurse's testimony is designed to show that although Mrs. Borroto suffered some pain, "no extraordinary amount of pain was shown on the charts."

Prosecution's Groundwork.
The prosecution proved witnesses who quoted the accused physician as having said he did an act of mercy, prompted by the woman's husband.

There was general agreement among prosecution witnesses that Dr. Sander contended that, although he might be breaking the law, he was committing no moral wrong.

Five Doctors Okayed Roach

NEW YORK—(AP)—Five doctors okayed Boxer Lavern Roach for his fatal fight last Wednesday night and an autopsy showed death was "accidental."

These facts revealed at Friday's open hearing conducted by the state athletic commission, with chairman Eddie Egan presiding and 10 witnesses in attendance.
Egan said a report will be made
"sometime next week."

Another probe was launched behind closed doors at the district attorney's office and will be continued Monday. Twenty witnesses appeared for the investigation, including many who had attended the state commission's hearing.

Hotel Condemnation Ordered By Irate Los Angeles Judge

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—A $2-000,000 hotel in one of Los Angeles' highest-priced districts is threatened with doom by a municipal judge who calls it "a glorified quackery hotel."

Judge Vernon Hunt, who said
he personally inspected the hotel, ruled Friday that the place is a
"hotbed of bawling debauchery."

He ordered its proprietors to tear it down or move it away.

Zimmer and Maurice Miller own the 200-room establishment known as the Country Club Villa hotel.

To Fight Order.
They accused Judge Hunt of anti-Semitism and said they will fight his order all the way to the Supreme court, if necessary.

The brothers and the hotel corporation were assessed fines totalling $5,500. Judge Hunt found the Millers guilty of erecting the lavish building without a permit of not getting a certificate of occupancy, of maintaining a public nuisance, of running a cafe, bar and night club in violation of zoning regulations.

He sentenced them to 30 days in jail and released them on $5,000 appeal bonds.

Neighbors Complained.
Judge Hunt said he visited the hotel last week to see what the neighbors were complaining about.
"I heard women screaming," he said, "cars going and coming; saw women unescorted—women who looked like the sporting type. I wondered if they might not be call girls."

He added: "This place is intended for people who only want to be there an hour or two. And not to sleep, either."

Proper packing will solve your baggage problems.
Sullivan's packers "know how" to prepare for safe removal or storage any household article from a delicate vase to a grand piano.

STATE—State officials came a step closer to breaking up a two-coast burglary ring in operation for more than a year Friday as a 33-year-old Omaha man was bound over to district court on charges of burglary.

Lt. Harold Smith, of the state safety patrol, said the Municipal court preliminary hearing Friday figured in the series of more than 78 individual Nebraska and Iowa burglaries.

The defendant in the charges, Don Reynolds, 1517 Chicago street, Omaha, pleaded innocent to the charges on arraignment Feb. 14. After the hearing Friday, Municipal Judge Edward C. Fisher bound him over to District court under $3,000 bond.

Panama Burglary Charge. The burglary complaint charged the defendant with breaking and entering the Dixon and Steves general merchandising store in Panama, Neb., August 12, 1949.

The main state witness, whose name is being withheld at the request of state law enforcement officials, is a man who is currently serving a two to five year sentence for burglary in a state institution.

State officials asked that the witness' name be withheld to aid in further work in the state.

The state's witness testified he, Reynolds, and a third party went to Panama the night of the robbery. The other two men got out of the car and walked through town and he met them later, the witness said, in front of the Dixon-Stevens store where they loaded merchandise in the car.

Companion Identified. He identified Reynolds' companion as Fay Carrell, Council Bluffs. Carrell is presently jailed at Pender, Neb., having failed to post $3,000 bond on burglary charges in Thurston county, according to Lt. Smith.

After the state rested its case, counsel for the defense moved for dismissal on the grounds that the complaint charged breaking and entering which the state had failed to show and that the defendant was not charged with receiving stolen goods.

The court overruled the motion and stated that the prosecution had shown probable cause for the charge and then bound the defendant over to district court for a jury trial.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle. We designed it to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Manager Form Government Urged In City

Lincoln needs either a city manager form of government or a mayor with more power than he is now vested with.

So declared the monthly bulletin of the Governmental Research Institute which was released Friday. The provocative title of the bulletin—"The City Council on Trial."

The bulletin is something of an indictment of council members. A note of frustration pervades the examples cited by the bulletin. Council members are individually anxious and ambitious. As such they cater to their friends and pressure groups "... public welfare is not the sole objective."

Pressure Groups.

This question is asked: "Do pressure groups run the city council?" Answer: "Normally in a small body in intimate association with all their fellow citizens, we should expect our council to represent all the people at all times. Apparently this is not so."

Next came a plug for the city manager form of government.

Q. "Can the city council reform itself?" A. "Not without outside help. Changes of rules and procedure may aid a little. The trouble seems too deep-seated and fundamental to be reached in this way."

The bulletin broached no way to reform. It only suggested that "something like a continuing citizen organization (is) needed in Lincoln."
